

WHY WE'RE TAKING ACTION TODAY

Your local services may be affected today because members of UNISON, the public service union, are taking industrial action to protect their pensions.

We regret any inconvenience our action is causing, but believe it is necessary to protect hard-working public service workers.

You see UNISON members every day.

They clean your streets, help with your children's education, care for you when you are old, sick or vulnerable, save lives, protect your streets and keep you safe.

They work hard to hold our communities together, but now they are told that their pensions, the schemes they pay into every month, must be cut.

Our members' decision to take action has prompted the government to start serious talks, and we have continued to negotiate in good faith, but are taking action today as a last resort.

Our members overwhelmingly voted to support today's action, even though many of them have never been on strike before.

They are taking action because they believe dignity and security in retirement are important and that's why they pay into their pension.

The proposed changes are not fair. Everyone, whatever their job and wherever they work, deserves a decent pension.

If you believe that everyone deserves a decent pension, please show your support today.

unison.org.uk/pensions/protectour.asp

a million voices for public services

Protect Our Pensions

UNISON
the public service union

Published and printed by UNISON, UNISON
Centre, 130 Euston Road, London NW1 2AY.
CU/November 2011/20468/3076.